SOWEGA Building

SOWEGA stands for the Southwest Georgia Melon Growers Association, which called this historic building home from 1931 to 1960.

The building's charming oval watermelon motifs are a nod to its original purpose.

After changing hands and serving various uses over the years, it was eventually gifted to the Cook County Chamber of Commerce by a local family.

Today, we're proud to carry on that tradition, working to support our community from a building that's rich with heritage and history.
